NACCHO Blueprint for Aboriginal Male
Healthy Futures 2013 - 2030

Mark Saunders

The purpose of the NACCHO Ochre Day is to:

- Build on the recommendations and outcomes of the NACCHO Roundtable on Aboriginal Male Health held in 2012 and the Male only session at the NACCHO AGM/Members meeting in November each year
 - Develop targeted male health strategies as part of an overarching gender and culture based approach to service provision;

The purpose of the NACCHO Ochre Day is to:

- Provide an opportunity to draw national public awareness to Aboriginal male health, and social and emotional wellbeing;
- Provide an opportunity to ‘showcase’ exemplars of best practice in Aboriginal male health service delivery.
- Facilitate cross-sector collaboration and coordination of Aboriginal male health awareness raising activities

Ochre Day Breakfast.

- NACCHO Ochre Day 2014 will begin with a male only Breakfast held in the Dining Room at Qld Parliament House. It include presentations from existing Aboriginal male health programs from AMSs.
- The priority target audience for the Breakfast will be Aboriginal male health workers from the ACCHSs sector.

Ochre Day in Musgrave Park

- NACCHO Ochre Day 2014 will continue at Musgrave Park from 11.00am-3.00pm. Women will be invited to join us for lunch to celebrate achievements in Aboriginal male health.
- Presentations will include a panel delivered by a selection of invited speakers
- The NACCHO Ochre Day 2014 (day one) will conclude with a 'NACCHO Ochre Day Dedication Ceremony' which included a smoking ceremony.

NACCHO Ochre Day outcomes would include:

- Increased overall community recognition and awareness of the health issues faced by Aboriginal males in Australia and how Aboriginal males are addressing these;
- Awareness and community support of the NACCHO 'Blueprint for Aboriginal Male Healthy Futures' (which includes identification of future priorities for service delivery, strategies to increase male access to ACCHSs for social and emotional wellbeing support);

Ochre Day 2014 (day two) activities would include:

- Day two will take place at the Brisbane Broncos Football Club function room.
- Delegates will be asked to workshop the 10 points of the NACCHO Male Health “Blueprint” that will inform the development of the “Action/Implementation Plan”
- Day two will bring together some of the male workforce in ACCHSs thereby providing an opportunity for networking, to share workforce experiences and activities and reinforce their value to each other, the ACCHSs sector, their families and communities;

NACCHOs Aim

- To improve the effectiveness and cultural validity of national policies, programs and initiatives as they relate to Aboriginal Male's Health
- For ACCH organisations to be resourced to fully meet the health and health-related needs of Aboriginal Males

Aboriginal Male Healthy Futures for Generational Change

John Liddle: Male Health Program Manager, Central Australian Aboriginal Congress.

- “For Aboriginal males to work on their health issues they need safe places to explore their health. We need more Aboriginal male health services like Congress, that deal with all aspects of our health, that have a community development role, that deal with the social relationships of our health.”
